When you are planning your Florida family vacation, you know Disney, SeaWorld and Universal are on the agenda. However, did you remember to relax and unwind by adding some beach time to your plan?

Orlando and all the attractions are definitely fun, but one would be hard pressed to call Orlando a relaxing vacation. With over 30 million visitors a year, lines will be long, restaurants crowded and other people's kids will definitely be loud! This is no dig on Orlando, you will have fun. The memories will be priceless and the kids will want to come again.

Disney offers theme parks and attractions for all age groups. Animal Kingdom, Magic Kingdom, Epcot, Blizzard Beach and Typhoon Lagoon can keep most tourists busy for a whole week. Add to that list of "Disney Fun" Universal Studio's, Islands of Adventure and SeaWorld. You could spend 3 weeks or more taking in the all the sites Orlando and Kissimmee attractions have to offer.

What is most important during your precious vacation experience? How about some time in the sun to unwind and relax? Relaxation on vacation is often over looked and underrated, but a little R & R can go along way to having more fun with the family and increasing those fond vacation memories.

As Orlando's closest beach, Cocoa Beach, Florida offers a chance to connect with nature and just relax on miles of pure Florida sand. Ocean breezes and incredible sunrises will make for incredible family photos and help you connect with the family in ways an "Orlando Only" vacation cannot.
